Project Description/Justification:

Individuals with disabilities often require assistive technology devices in order to live independently, perform well in school, and maintain employment. They are also more likely to live in poverty and lack resources to investigate and purchase outright these sorts of devices.

Assistive Technology of Alaska (ATLA) reports that 90% of children and adolescents use computers as part of their education process, and over half of employed people use computers in their work. Access to specialized equipment is important to educational and employment success for people experiencing disabilities. Assistive technology is also very important to individuals seeking to achieve the highest level of independence possible.

Assistive technology devices include but are not limited to:

- augmented and alternative devices, like picture charts, book, and specialized computers;
- computer software and devices to assist with education, employment, or environment needs; and
- appliances and tools to aid daily living, ranging from simple devices to control lighting to complex systems like chin controls and controls governed by eye movements.

ATLA is the primary provider of assistive technology consultations, counseling, and products.

Mission:

To promote and protect the health and well-being of Alaskans.

End Result:

The mental health of Alaskans is optimized. Vulnerable Alaskans have a safe living environment.

Use of budget fund code 1268 directs expenditure of money held in reserve in the Mental Health Trust Settlement Income Account in excess of the amount directed for use by the Trust through annual recommendations (state accounting system fund 3321). Per AS 37.14.041(b) money in excess of the amount needed to meet the necessary expenses of the state's integrated comprehensive mental health program shall be transferred to the general fund and used for any public purpose. To ensure these monies are expended to the benefit of the state's mental health program and not swept to the general fund, a portion of the reserves are being utilized to fund various mental health programs and Trust recommendations with the intent of drawing reserves down over a period of five years.
